LEGEND

Jan. '52

Weequahic High School — NEWARK, NEW JERSEY

Foreword

HOWDY, symbol of a heart-felt welcome, urban or country style, is an expression characterized by its true and clear pealing, synonymous to a bell in a peaceful tower.

Representative of more than a note of welcome though, its meaning silently extends a hope of well being and a permanent invitation to settle among the welcomers.

Thus, to our friends and readers, with a warm, "across the fence" neighborliness, comes the echo of "Howdys" from one hundred and seventy-nine young stalks grown tall and ready for harvest.

Sadie Z. Rous

Dedication

We know true greatness, that of the heart and mind . . . . it has shone brilliantly in our midst. For three years we have lived in a perpetual springtime . . . . basked in the warmth of her loving devotion.

How difficult it is to convey to others the extent of her mental prowess, her altruistic interest in world affairs and the rights of man; she is her "brother's keeper." Her invaluable guidance was tempered with kindness, deep understanding, and a sincere personal interest in the welfare of every one of us.

Though we realize that we have not set a precedent in our profound affection for her, we like to feel that ours will remain unsurpassed.

With reluctance we leave, but with pride we present you, Mrs. Rous, to others who need you now. Still, all of us "cherubs" will continue to consider you our number one angel!

Michael Conovitz
PRINCIPAL

TO THE CLASS OF JANUARY 1952

"Four seasons fill the measure of the year;
There are four seasons in the mind of man:"
. . . so sings the poet.

The Springtime of life with its dreams and ambitions and worlds to conquer and foundations of character and knowledge to build—

The Summer of life with its realizations and achievements and sense of power and growth—

The Autumn of life with its balanced acceptance of reward and censure, of ripened maturity of soul and character and judgment—

And finally the Winter of life with its remembrance of tasks achieved, of work well done, with the savoring to the full each passing minute and hour, with readiness to give of its wisdom oft unheeded—content if only health and comfort and love remain.

Michael Conovitz

ASSISTANTS TO THE PRINCIPAL

Constance D. Bowerman

Far too numerable to mention are the invaluable contributions made by Miss Bowerman and Mr. Ackerman. Constant service, effort, and kindness in behalf of the student body have made them distinguished and welcomed figures in the halls of Weequahic.

We, as seniors, will not and cannot forget the wonderful welcome mat spread out by you, Mr. Ackerman, when we first began our high school career at the Annex. Neither shall your informal chats and your friendly advice to us be forgotten. Duly appreciated, Miss Bowerman, is the patience demonstrated towards us in most trying instances during the three years at the Main Building. The most complicated of matters in your hands became the simplest. For these traits and many more, we of the January 1952 Class say thanks to you both.

Our Endearing Squires

GEORGE C. MARTINO

SADIE Z. ROUS

EDWARD E. KOBETZ

We 4A's are a lucky lot
To have the teachers that we've got!
At times we've been unduly rude,
But always full of gratitude.

Dear Mrs. Rous has always been
A mother to us—not of kin.

Smiling Mr. Kobetz everyone does attract.
We adore his good humor; we adore him, in fact.

A history teacher and swell guy combined,
Mr. Lippe's good natured and clever of mind.

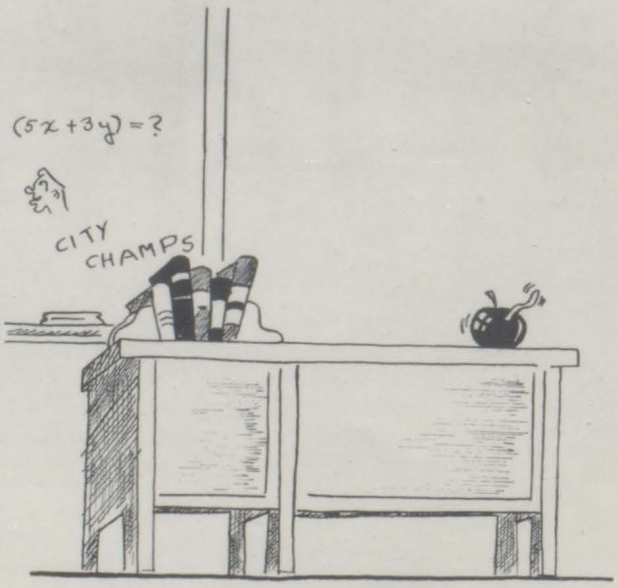

A teacher of Spanish, French, and Latin;
A person of helpfulness is Miss Patton.

Mr. Martino, a scientist terrific,
Would help us solve problems unscientific.

In physics, outstanding; in nature, sincere;
Mr. Eisen's another whom we revere.

We're lucky we did not attend
A one-room school, for at the end
We would look back with much regret
That but one teacher had we met.

Here at Weequahic we do see
So many teachers constantly.
Of all we meet in class and hall,
These six we cherish most of all!

THE WEATHER
CLEAR AND SUNNY

The Weequahic

The township committee of Weequahic Annex greeted us, an awed and anxious group of grammar school hicks, in the the Meeting Hall. Our attention was suddenly turned to French verbs and Latin declensions instead of the usual chickens, crops, and hogs. We attacked our subjects with the energy usually reserved for mowing and plowing. One day, the study hall quiet was suddenly interrupted by one of the hired hands eagerly cracking his knuckles to the tune of "Turkey in the Straw". It was also on that same day that the Sheriff finally solved the mystery of the disappearance of "Doc" Lowenstein's wastebasket when it was discovered about the neck of a French student. Finally, after a year of hard work our crops were found satisfactory and we were given tenure at Weequahic Hill.

With the coming of the new years, seeds of German, Biology, and Typing were planted and plowed under by the new Sophomores. Mrs. Rous did her best to familiarize us with this new way of life, but we were hopelessly confused. Our only source of pleasure was our waterguns and the realization that next year we would be Juniors.

When this finally happened, there was a mass meeting in Town Hall when the citizens elected Sheriff Kimmelman, Deputy Hinkes, Clerk Medvin, and Banker Plishtin. The newly-elected officers supervised a terrific hoe-down and square dance, dosey-do's and all.

It was in this year that our "Little Theatre Group" met in DeLisi's barn to start the stock production of "Junior Miss", a rollicking success in our town.

It was a short time after this that the farm boys started laying the foundation for a plentiful harvest the next year in sports. They put down their shovels and hoes on Saturday afternoons, and spent their time on the gridiron instead of the wheat fields. Their efforts were rewarded when Coach Stamelman led the herd through smashing victories to their first City Championship.

Our attention turned also to our Senior Hop, under the direction of re-elected officers and newly-elected Banker Gold, when we decorated the Weequahic Hill gym like the New York City skyline to the best of our rustic ability. This was followed by the Senior Prom when we traveled to the Essex House in the big city (sans dungarees) in real "live" cars instead of the usual horse and buggy.

But, of course, the biggest event, the one remembered best by all, was Graduation. In blue caps and gowns, as we promenaded down the aisle, we were truly a sight to behold—country kids on the threshold of life.

HEAR YE! HEAR YE!

1776! A small, insignificant colony of people dared to revolt against the strongest power on the high seas, and dared to win, through revolution, her independence! And throughout this new nation, soon to call itself the United States of America, sprang up Town Halls, symbolic not only of national autonomy, but also of the individual's freedom of expression. The people cherished their rights, and their children demanded these same privileges.

As we, a part of this America and the concept of the Town Hall, approach graduation, the spirit of '76 charges through our veins. Here we publish our own declaration of independence. We acknowledge gratefully our parents' and teachers' guidance to this point, but we must now sharply cut the intellectual apron strings which bind us.

Henceforth, we shall draw upon our own mental resources, make our own decisions and manage our lives according to our individual consciences. We shall try to learn new things and grow in stature as much as possible every day, and the incentive will be self-derived.

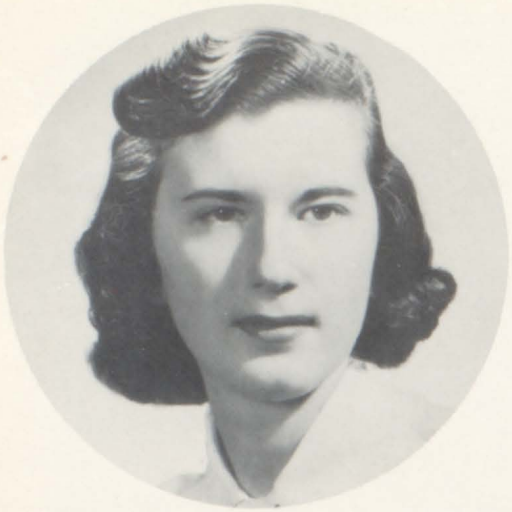

With the passing of time, we hope to prosper intellectually, and spiritually, thereby enriching our nation. With our new-grown strength we shall function as individuals with self-respect and self-responsibility, simultaneously contributing to the group and considering its welfare since it is also our own.

We join the citizens at Town Hall, with courage in our convictions. The Town Hall will live with us, and as long as we, respecters of ourselves and mankind, faithfully practice the principles of civil liberty embodied in this structure, no demagogue, no dictator, no totalitarian form of government, only our democratic way of life, can endure.

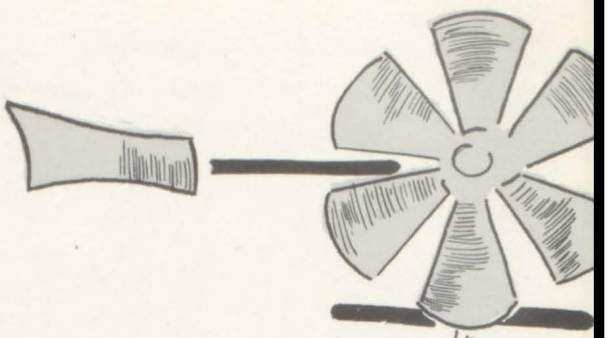

Hear this, World!

Your fledglings are in full ascendency. We declare ourselves — Free!

Kobetz's Kows 229 miles

At the General Store

There's a sale at Kobetz' General Store,
So come on, there'll be bargains galore.
Ordering now is Carol Beyer.
The clerk says, "Good mornin', what's your desire?"
"I'd like three yards of that cotton plaid."
Iris Hymowitz adds, "Now that's the fad!"
There Sondra Lipnick and Gerry Poerner
Are standing in the grocery corner
Decidin' just what they should order.
Now Zeta Newmark, a town-inn boarder,
Says, "My poor car's just had a flat."
Harv Willner says, "I'll soon fix that!"
Some girls are there comparing notes
On all the latest styles in coats.
Natalie Confield, with hair of red,
Says, "Should I buy the pink or the blue coat instead?"
"Oh, take the blue," says sweet Jean Lippy.
Florence Laucik adds, "The pink looks hippy!"
Iris Greenwald ties her horse at the post,
Then comes in and orders a five-pound roast.
Now in the store comes Mary Chirick
Singin' some old country lyric.
She gives everyone her usual grin.
Then the Gossetts, Bob and Delores, come in.
Now a fellow enters. "I'm answerin' your ad.
I'll be the best salesboy you've ever had!"
"You see I'm busy," the boss says in anger,
"But I can use you, Jordan Swanger."
He starts work and says, "Are you being helped, ma'am?"
Doris Schenack answers, "Yes, thanks, I am."
Now up steps clever Louise Byl
Who lives down the road about a mile.
For her new farm she buys some seeds.
Then Arlene Gelfound gets her needs.
"Sheriff Sam Williams" is comin' to dinner,"
She says with all the pride that's in 'er.
"Have you got some drops to cure my cough?"
Asks farmer Alan Lazaroff.
Leon Goldfarb says, "My durn old hen
Seems to have gone on strike again.
I'll have to buy eggs—oh, eight or nine."
Maxine Grossbach says, "These eggs look fine.
May I have some bread? Oh, you have none, I see."
The clerk says, "It'll be here at three—
That's a minute from now. The boy's got good timin'."
Now here comes the bread boy, Yussie Kleiman.
Pearl Geldzahler, purty as can be,
Asks, "May I have a loaf? It smells good to me!"
Rita Feldman says, "I met today
Fire-chief Jerry Karl a-comin' this way."
Jerry Zimmerman's one of his volunteers.
They've been the whole fire department for years.
Both come to the store in a very short while.
Barbara Richter says, "Howdy," with her usual smile.
Joan Chattman asks, "How do you work an alarm?
We've got a fire box down at our farm."
"All you do is break the glass off
Then push the button," says Judy Masoff.
"Well, what do you know!" Bev Rothberg does state.
"Say, we've gotta go 'cause it's getting late."
Mr. Kobetz is about to close,
And merrily chatting, everyone goes.
Whenever we're in town we stop
At Kobetz' Store—a swell place to shop!

Lippe's Lambs

At the Country Fair

Out to the country? Why let's go there
And visit Mr. Lippe's country fair.
Cute Avis Dresdner's there to meet us
And very cordially does she greet us.
"You came in the nick of time," she states,
"To see our strong men lifting weights."
Stuart Schornstein with strength quite rare,
Lifts two hundred pounds in the air.
Charlie Goldfarb also lifts two hundred pounds.
Now, let's go see the rest o' the grounds.
There's judge Elaine Rosenfeld makin' a test
To see which lady's pie's the best.
The scrumptious apple pie that's chosen
Belongs to happy Joanne Rosen.
Some folks to the "Fortune Wheel" have gone.
Now placing her bet is Marcia Kahan.
She wins the first time. Now Harold Beim
On number eleven places his dime.
He loses, but a win does place a smile
On the face of Barbara Osterweil.
Where shall we go? Phil Brody, oh
Please take us to the rodeo!
There we see horses jumping wildly,
Yet Barry Kimmelman mounts his mildly.
Al Ginsburg, a rider bold and wise,
Wins a fifty dollar prize.
The lariat champ's Allen Rubinstein.
"That was great roping," says Lois Levine.
Now Sylvia Bandler races with Another horsewoman, Barbara Smith.
But Sylvia's horse (far from perfection)
Decides to run in the wrong direction.
Come, let's follow Frieda Blou
And see where she will take us now.
We watch the knife thrower (who may be a menace).
He aims his knives around Pat Bennis.
It's amazing how steady his right hand is!
Now, here comes Mercedes Fernandez,
Saying, "All our fortunes can be told
By the "Master Mystic" Robert Gold."
Says Paula Tischler with great zeal,
"I wonder what my cards reveal!"
Happily leaving the tent now, that's
The very clever Paula Katz.
Over there's a pie-eating contest accordin'
To very eager Myron Borden.
Don Borger and Herb Hymanson try
To eat the greatest amount of pie.
Don eats so much that he can't budge,
But Rose Marie Braslawsky, the judge,
Decides that there has been a tie
And awards both a year's supply of pie.
Gene Stifelman sees the kids in a bunch
And says, "Let's have a picnic lunch."
Janice Weber's sandwiches can't be beat!"
Marie Trautman asks, "What's there to eat?"
Says Leatrice Friedman, "Don't ask, just grab."
And then the girls sit down and gab.
Before very long, the boys decide
It's just about time for the homeward ride.
First, Pauline Medvin says, "Don't forget,
I'll write this up in the Calumet."
And so, very soon we're on our way
After a perfectly wonderful day.

Martino's Mules 304 miles

At the Square Dance

C'mon kids, let's all join in,
The square dance is about to begin.
There in the corner makin' like Nero
Is the fiddler, Nelson Shapiro.
"Honor your partner; honor your neighbor,"
Shouts the caller, Herby Shaber.
If all the dancers you inspect
You're sure to see blond Wayne Isbrecht
A-whirlin' Ruth Holcombe when Herby yells,
"Swing!"
Dancin' so merrily, there's Burton Ring.
He's promenadin' Corinne Krim.
Now Marty Gilbert brought with him
Shirlee Namarovsky sweet
And light and dainty on her feet.
Our Billy Sax, so good at sports,
Is circlin' round with swell Jean Schwartz.
Jim Freedman's dancin' with sweet June Donner.
(You ought to see that smile on 'er.)
"Eight hands round." His voice gets harsher.
Leadin' one set is Larry Barsher.
Yvonne Pfeffer's at his side.
She dances so well and sings beside.
Outside the square Norm Katowitz.
Approves with Barry Markowitz.
"The square dance is comin' along just fine!"
That's the opinion of Judge Paul Klein.
Murray Maysles asks, "Which girl's a good dancer?"
"Arlene Klein" is Lenny Atlas' answer.
Don Riemer (who doesn't ever frown)
Swings Marcia Rosenzweig aroun'.
The square dance ends, and all are sad.
'Twas the gayest dance we've ever had.
Bill Pletzner says, "We hope you've had fun."
Bill Weinstein adds, "There's food for everyone."
But first we'll hear from a fine quartet.
This evening isn't over yet!"
Joyce Skarbnik makes the eighty-eight ring,
While Al Weinstein's saxophone seems to sing.
The buglers are Art Spielvogel and Ronnie Orbach.
When they stop, the audience yells, "Bring the four back!"
But it's awfully late, and have to go.
So long, Mr. Martino, we've enjoyed it so.

At the Farm House

Let's visit with dear Mrs. Rous
Out at her little country house
Where kids all go for relaxation
(When school is out, they need a vacation.)
We just arrived. Please let us in!
The door is opened by Rhoda Zinn.
A very pleasant welcome hailing
Is shouted to us by Karl Maling.
"C'mon, everybody. Breakfast's on,"
Yells the head chef Howard Kahan.
Marvin Bartfield is the waiter.
Don Slonim, the bus boy, will be here later.
He took his fine horse from the stable
And went to town with Morty Sable.
Here come the kids all set to eat.
First, Sandy Schapiro, very sweet,
Sees newcomer Carol Spector
And to the table does direct 'er.
Jerry Shindleman comes in now
And wants to get his share of chow.
Look, Billy Kapner and Toby Katz
Are wearing fancy cowboy hats.
Someone bets that Phyllis Linnett c'n
Get here faster 'n Alvin Lubetkin,
And being a gentleman, Alvin yields
So the bet is won by Jackie Fields.
Some guests remain upstairs in bed,
While others go out riding instead.
Each one at the table eats and jokes,
At the end of the hour, all the folks
Go to the pool where Fred Schulaner
Demonstrates a fine half gainer.
Norm Hinkes dives in with a run,
Then Morty Goldberg joins the fun.
"Ma" Rous calls, "Cherubs, there're chores to do."
Fred Parnes says, "We'll play when we're through."
Elinor Shapiro sweeps the floor,
While Leon Rosenberg's daily chore
Is to build a fire and fetch more wood.
Wilbert Slanika does as he should
And paints the barn, while Adrienne Asch
Is in the kitchen cooking hash.
(That's what we eat each Monday noon.)
It will be time to stop work soon.
Sam Kalsmith leaves the chickens now,
And Irwin Wistreich stops milking the cow.
Roberta Fromkin rings the lunch bell,
And Ed Newfeld gets water from the well.
First at the table is Evanne Schreiber.
She's sweet and bright—that's how to describe 'er.
Harriet Liebow yells, "I'm starvin',"
And signals to the waiter, Marvin,
Who says, "Aw, Harriet, hold your horses."
Bob Lieb then asks him what the first course is.
Patiently waiting is Judy Oaklander
And so some hash does the waiter hand 'er.
The whole household eats. When everyone's done,
We've gotta go for it's half past one.
Back on the truck we visitors climb.
Goodbye, Mrs. Rous, we've had a swell time.

Patton's Pullets 309 miles

At the Dude Ranch

We're gonna be dudes just for the day
Out at a dude ranch up a way.
Is everyone here? Where's Janey Auster?
Oh, there she is. We tho't we'd lost 'er.
It's been a long ride. At last we're here!
First on her horse is Rosanne Spier.
But it seems the ground appears much safer
To beginner Barbara Shlafer.
Morton Sudler and George Schorr
Seem to like wild stallions more.
That horse is mighty rough, by heck!
"I'll mount her, then," says Aaron Peck.
Not everybody wants to ride.
The ranch-house is real nice inside.
Audrey Leff and Esther Eiser
Think that staying in is wiser.
Elaine Yablonsky agrees and sits
Inside the ranch-house where she knits.
Abby Mankofsky's over there
Resting in an easy chair.
Outside again, Don Blotner's askin',
"Has anyone seen David Braskin?
I want the horse he's ridin' on!"
Here he comes now, limping, Don.
"This nag's too rough for one alone!"
"I'll try her then," says Milton Kohn.
He cant' hold on. He'll have to come off.
"Let me try," says Irwin Dumbroff,
"I won't get off on any account!"
Let's watch this plucky fellow mount.
He makes it without a single fall.
Now let's go to the recreation hall
Just for a little change of scene.
There're Butch Grossman and Leonard Levine
Playin' shuffleboard on the floor.
They play so well, there is no score.
Come to the stage and look at this.
Joyce Steinberg's recitin' from "Junior Miss."
And over there is Marian Shaw,
The cutest gal you ever saw.
She's playing ping-pong with Rhoda Kertz
Who was kicked by a horse just where it hurts.
Carolee Roberts just ran out
To find the slowest horse, no doubt.
Carl Grossman says to Robert Schwartz,
"Say, let's go to the tennis courts."
Look there! What do you think of that!
Joel Koenig's wearin' a ten gallon hat.
So is bright-eyed Meryl Chatkin
Who's holdin' hers on with a hat pin.
Now, pity Bernard Herskovitz.
He just can't find a hat that fits.
And there Jay Beckerman of course is
Drawing pictures of the horses.
Oh, look! Poor Marvin Chiamovich's
Britches are in need of stitches.
He fell into a briar bush.
(Edward Drzik gave 'em a push.)
Joel Canfield's calling, "Let's all go.
We can't stay here forever, you know."
So into the truck we all do pile,
We're on our way!—Just one more mile!
Away from the horses and their neigh.
S'long, Miss Patton, it's been a swell day!

Harvest Time

It's harvest time, so early we're risin'
To go to the farm of Mr. Eisen.
To help him with his yearly pickin'.
(We eat as we go, so we're not kickin'.)
"Let's go to the orchard; the apples look swell,"
Says Norma Fages, "There'll be plenty to sell!"
Veda Fallik adds, "Now there are many,
But when we finish pickin', there may not be any."
The first one in the apple tree climbin'
Is none other than Helmut Heimann.
He picks some apples and eats a few,
Now Sanford Silverman climbs up, too.
He says, "C'mon up, Sandy Brandt,"
But a bit afraid, she says, "I can't."
Then Ira Greenwald, courteously,
Helps poor Sandy climb the tree.
"The tomatoes are ripe; c'mon you-all,
Let's pick 'em," says Joseph Goldenthal.
Al Stepner claims he'll help this fellow.
"So will I," says Marta Ignomirello.
"There's corn to be picked," shouts Elizabeth Kurz.
The idea was also Gary Scher's.
As they go they meet Judy Kahl and Carol Makon
On the way, several others the group does take on.
"Say I know what!" says Gene Rosenfeld.
"A little contest will be held
To see who can pick the most corn today.
A bushel of corn will be his pay."
"Let's not be corny," chides Barry Rein,
"But if that's your wish, so'll it be mine."
"I think that prize would be a humdinger,
So let's get started," says purty Jeanne Singer.
On the reaper sits puzzled Ina Levine.
Saying, "How do you work this darn machine?"
Murray Plishtin says, "I'll show you how.
Say, this isn't a reaper, this is a plow!"
Ina gets down and says, "Thank you, feller."
"Is that the reaper?" asks Zelda Weller.
Lee Zimmerman shouts, "I'll bring it here."
He climbs in and shifts it into first gear.
It flies over half an acre or more.
(Poor Lee has never driven before.)
Burt Hollander yells, "Pull the brake on top."
Finally that makes the reaper stop.
Sonya Kaufman says, "Climb on, everyone."
And before they know it the reaping's done.
Marcia Kleinman (who is the corn-picking winner)
Says, "Don't you think it's time for dinner?
Aaron Blutman, full of apples inside,
Say's "I couldn't eat a meal if I tried!"
Sona Pashain says, "I love country cooking."
And Leonard Weckstein, her way looking,
Says, "Yes, but if they don't serve soon,
I'll starve before this afternoon."
Estelle Kirschenbaum makes the lunch bell chime.
And the kids are eating in little time.
Now standing up is Harriet Mintz.
"We've a long way to travel," she politely hints.
When no one responds, then says sweet Ann Cohen,
"C'mon, everyone, we've just got to be goin'."
We help with the dishes and bid our adieux,
Then travel away from the country views.
Today at the country we've each been a guest,
Now, back to the city for a much needed rest!

One of the many beaus in Junior Miss, showing off his new lighter, unaware of the admiring eyes of his date.

In the role of Haskell Cummings, Barry Kimmelman, our class president, precipitated oohs and ahs when he appeared in a suave tuxedo.

A typical scene from Junior Miss, showing the parents in intense conversation, one daughter dreaming of her forthcoming date, and Judy hitting upon one of her many brainstorms.

A few of the competent cast taking their curtain call as Hollywood scouts bid for their talents.

Senior thespians who appeared in Junior Miss jubilantly group on stage to joke about the night's performance. Seated in front is Mr. De Lisi, director of this successful production.

Love in courtship and marriage were realistically portrayed by these stellar performers!

Education can be pleasant as exemplified by the learned expressions of this 4A class.

Oh! Those wonderful labs with Mr. Martino. Too bad other Weequahic students, groping for fresh air, didn't think so too.

Who will ever forget what we learned in Mrs. Lappe's history class. Such important things as Columbus discovered America in 1493 . . .

A profound understanding of poetry is reflected on the faces of these students in Mr. Wallock's fourth period English.

Smiling seniors helping themselves to some of that "delicious" lunchroom food and upon finishing it were found to be still smiling.

Heads bent in studious concentration, these Weequahic students are not really reading. They posed for this picture.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt stressing the eternal values of democracy and political orientation for young minds.

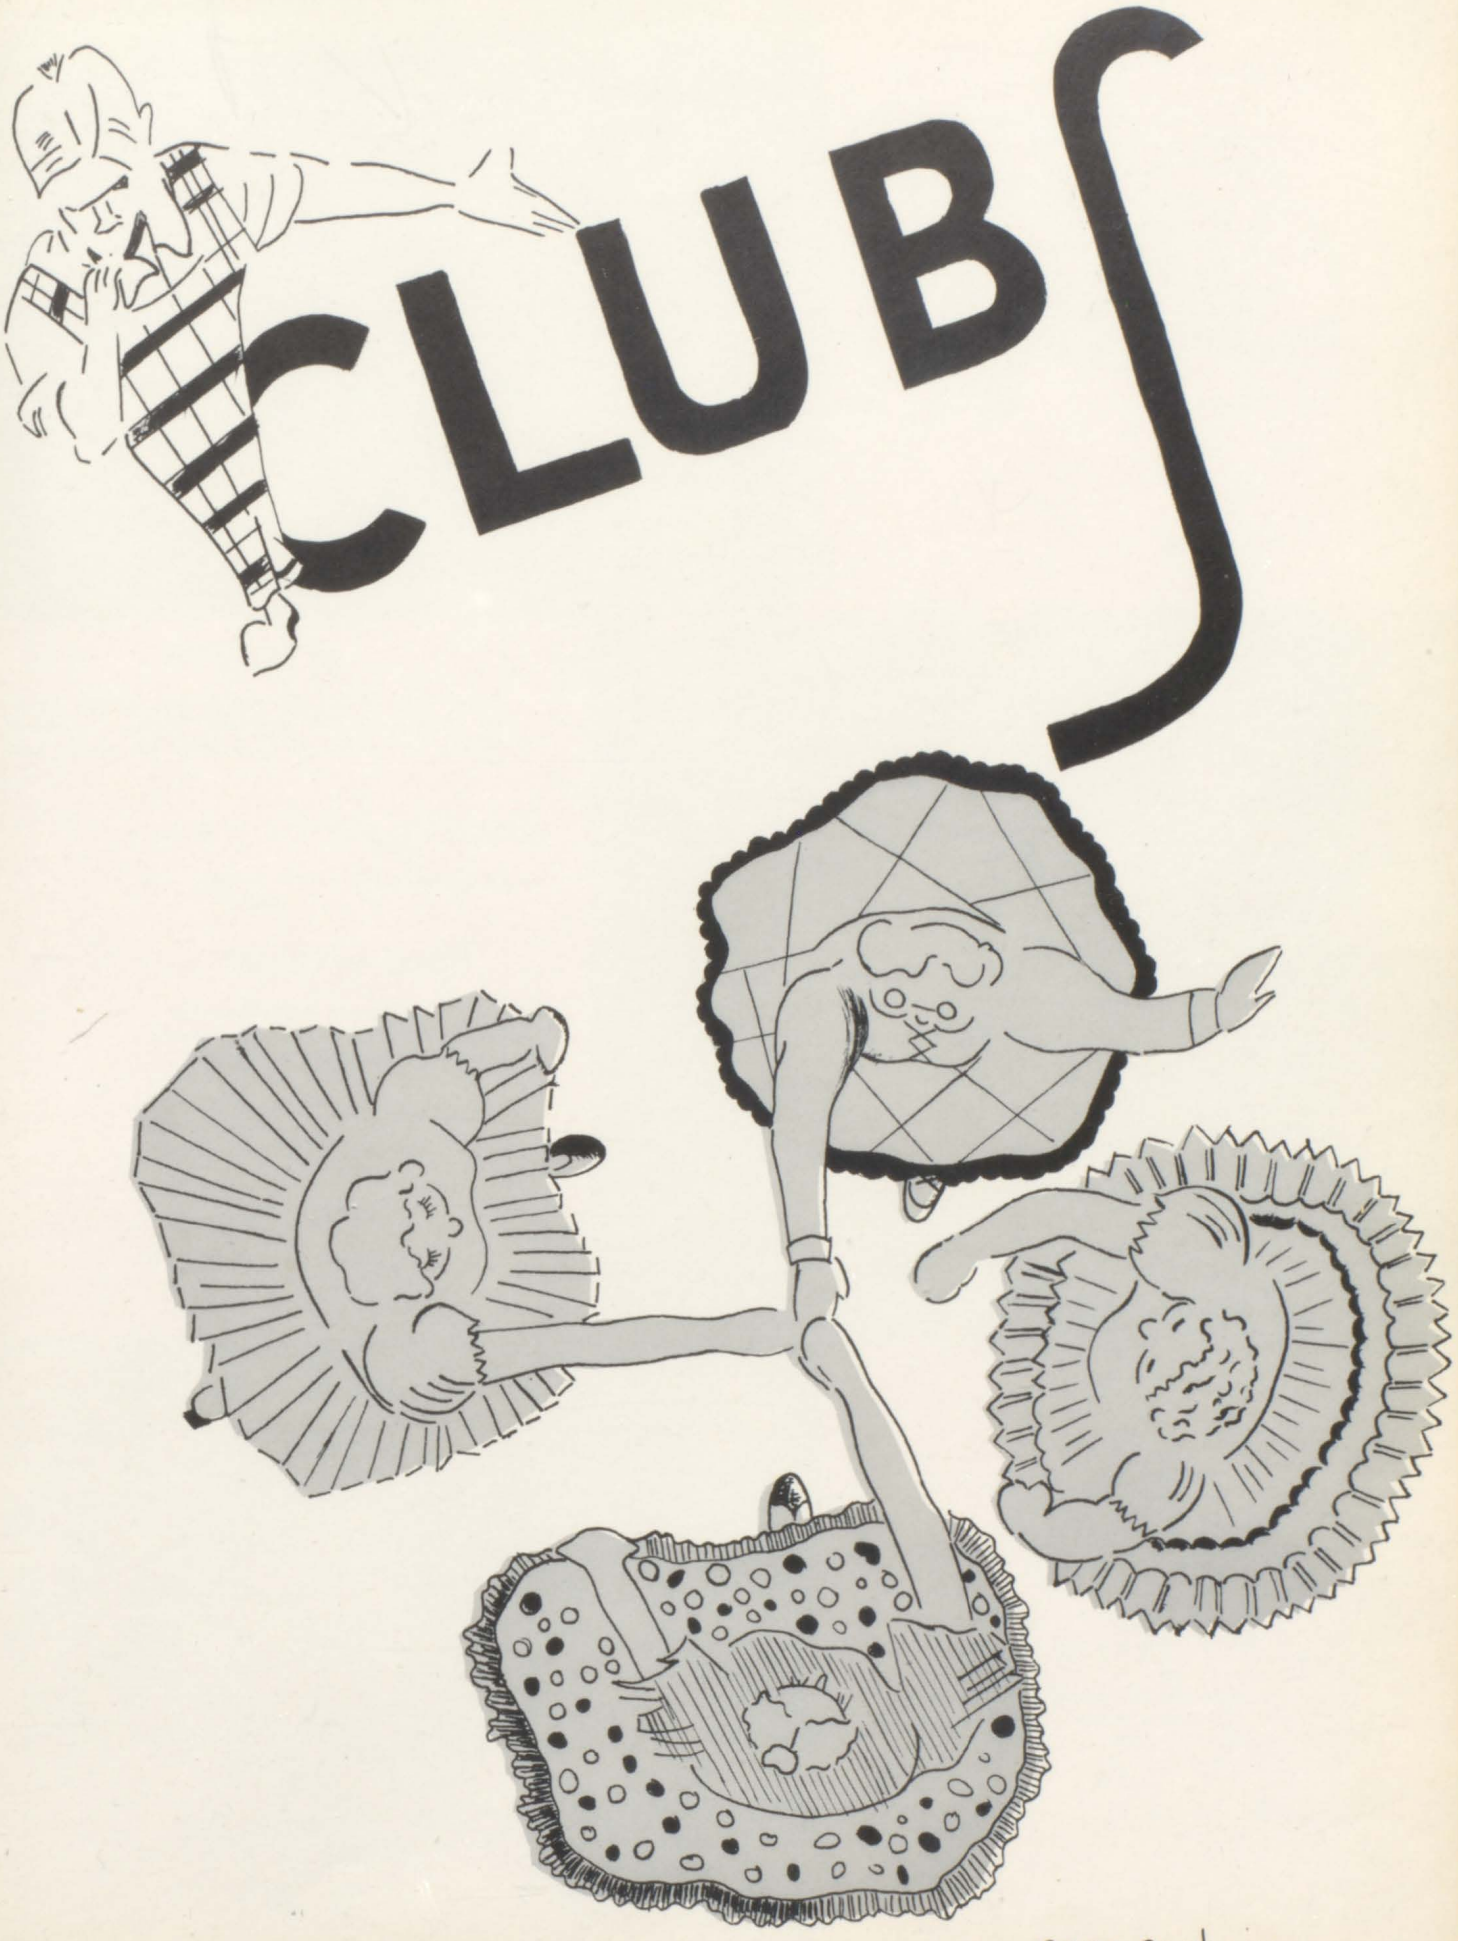

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt chating informally amidst Weequahic students in the gymnasium as they respond warmly to her personality.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, Weequahic's honored guest, and Mr. Michael Conovitz, our principal, listening raptly to O. B. A. President Martin Sorger.

The Plough and The Stars

For weeks tongues wagged, hearts beat faster, and the looks on undergraduate and alumni faces smiled as they had never smiled before for a new "world" was in the making. Weequahic was at last running its football foes into the dust. A Hercules had been born in the cradle of Minerva.

From the first, incredibility had given way to instantaneous recognition and universal support by the student body, faculty, and far-flung alumni. Something great was happening in our midst and few deigned not to be witnesses to this most spectacular of events.

History and evolution, sometimes slow in these matters, had finally caught up. What a day! What a phenomenon! What a Team!

"Sweet are the uses of adversity" (in this instance, our defeats of the past) for they have taught and prepared us so well. It was not after all a "miracle" we beheld but a monument, this unprecedented record of ours, made by the sweat, stamina and stick-to-itiveness of a band of boys dedicated to a cause—that of performing on the gridiron with courage, speed and distinction.

Special praise could be heaped on several individual players (five have made the All-City first team, three the second and third teams) but it is the Team as a whole that merits the highest accolades. Eleven hearts and bodies united and straining as one. Shall we ever forget our Team's mighty surge in the Union and West Side games when our boys showed us they had the grit to come back. It was then they plowed their way to the stars and into our hearts. "Oh what a day that was!" as a poet has said.

Therefore, we, the Class of January 1952, pay our respect and heart-felt tribute to the boys who came through, who fought their way to a city championship without defeat and who gave our school the best gridiron record in its history with seven victories, a tie and one defeat, losing only to a determined Bloomfield team. We take, too, a double pride in knowing that six members of the Team who helped considerably in this great achievement are members of our January class.

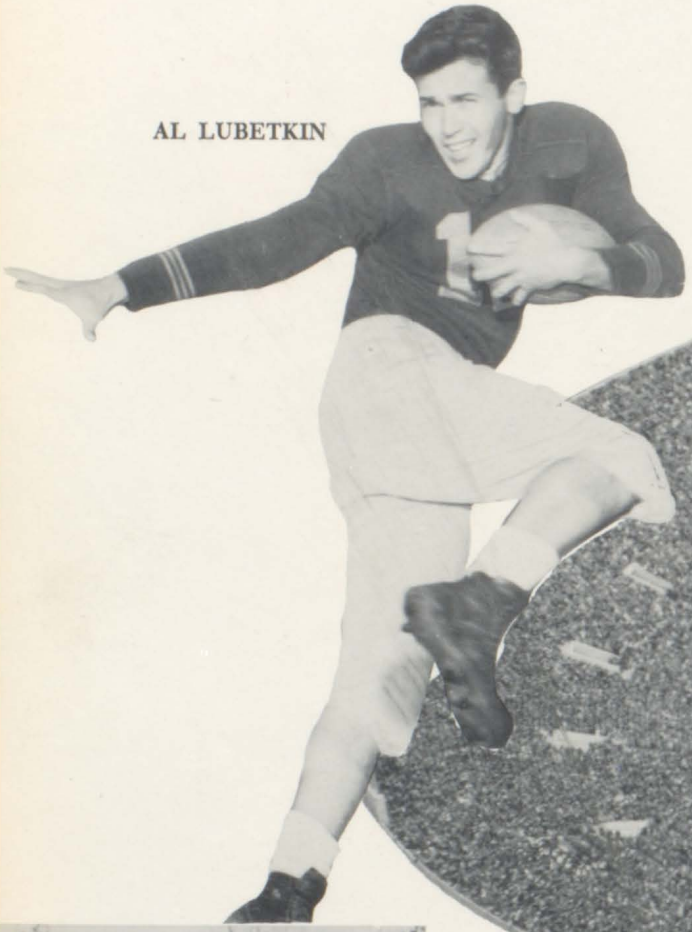

So hail and farewell, stout hearts! It was nice to have been with you.

Sports Roundup

In recording the athletic achievements of our school teams, the individual efforts of participating seniors cannot be overlooked. They have written a glorious chapter into the annals of Weequahic sports. The sacrifices and hardships they underwent, not only during actual contests, but in daily, grueling practices, is a testament to their high caliber. It is proper, therefore, that we record their feats in our Legend so that in years to come, we can recapture more easily the thrilling moments they have afforded us.

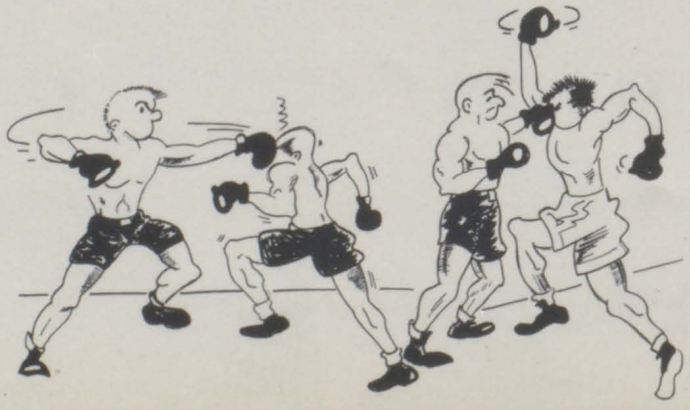

Alvin Lubetkin has probably been one of the greatest athletes ever to walk through the corridors of our school. Small in stature but possessing a body of steel, Al was already playing stellar varsity football in his freshman year, when he received his first of four letters. His outstanding achievements on the gridiron as a deceptive, speedy halfback have not gone unnoticed, as he made All-City in '49, '50, and '51, and All-County and All-State in '51.

Eager to follow in his brother's footsteps, Al gained his first of four varsity letters as a freshman. This is a feat that is almost as rare at Weequahic as winning six successive blue ribbons at a state fair. "Luby" has been picked for All-City basketball teams of '50 and '51, also making All-County in the latter year. He has also printed his name in our record book by breaking many school scoring marks for both football and basketball.

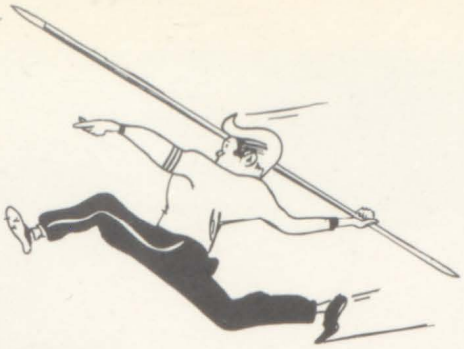

Norman Hinkes has been calling plays as a varsity quarterback for the past four years, earning his first of four letters as a freshman. A fine ball handler, accurate passer, and a natural leader, he knows the job of every boy on the playing field, and almost instinctively calls the correct play in crucial parts of a game. Norm was picked to represent Weequahic on the All-City teams in both of his last two years. Interesting is the fact that he was elected co-captain of the football team and captain of the track team, proof that other athletes respect his tremendous abilities. A fine runner, Norm took second in the city quarter-mile and first in the city in the javelin. He also ran the anchor leg on our outstanding relay team.

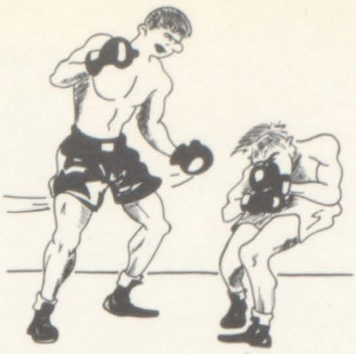

Softspoken, rugged Sam Williams is another member of our outstanding football squad. His ready smile, replaced by a determined grimace during a game, is well known to his many friends. Sam, one of the finest defensive halfbacks in the city, has been a varsity performer for the past two years. This year he was elected co-captain of the team.

Persistence and hard work have made Don Blotner one of the anchors of this year's Indian line. The biggest man on the team, Don has been a performer for four years, gaining his varsity letters as a junior and senior. This season he was picked for a berth on the All-City team as a tackle.

Red-headed Billy Sax, stalwart end, has bolstered the Weequahic line for the last three seasons, and has earned a letter in his junior and senior years. Bill plays both offense and defense, rarely rests during a game, and has glue fingers when it comes to catching passes.

Another talented athlete is Carl Grossman, earning letters in three varsity sports. Carl was center and rugged line backer for this year's line and contributed many sparkling defensive plays to bolster the team's spirit. During his sophomore year he won a medal for his efforts with the discus in the city track meet. He also has a boxing letter to his credit.

Harvey Willner has two letters and two medals to show for his efforts with the Indian track team. As a sophomore, he helped Weequahic Annex to the Junior City Crown by placing in the pole vaulting event. As a senior, he also pole vaulted himself to city fame. Along with Harv on the track team, Jay Beckerman was valuable as a shot-putter and he also earned his boxing letter. Other boxers who have won letters are Dave Braskin, Fred Schulaner, and Artie Shapiro.

Murray Plishtin, Barry Markowitz, and Alan Weinstein all earned their varsity basketball letters as seniors.

There was activity on another front. Our girls did themselves proud in intramural athletics. Marcia Rosenzweig, our most outstanding distaff-side athlete, has not only won a "W", but has also received a pin for outstanding performance in gymnastics. Other letter winners are Jane Auster, Meryl Chatkin, Pearl Geldzahler, Toby Katz, and Evanne Schreiber. By participating in the soccer, badminton, volley ball, baseball, and basketball clubs, these girls have risen to their present high standings. Also not to be forgotten are Avis Dresdner, Barbara Richter, Sandy Schapiro, and Roberta Fromkin.

To the above mentioned seniors, who have tried to maintain the high traditions of Weequahic High, we can only say well done. In our hearts and in the hearts of students who have witnessed their fine contributions to our school, will always be praise, admiration, and gratefulness for the many times they have given us cause to cheer.

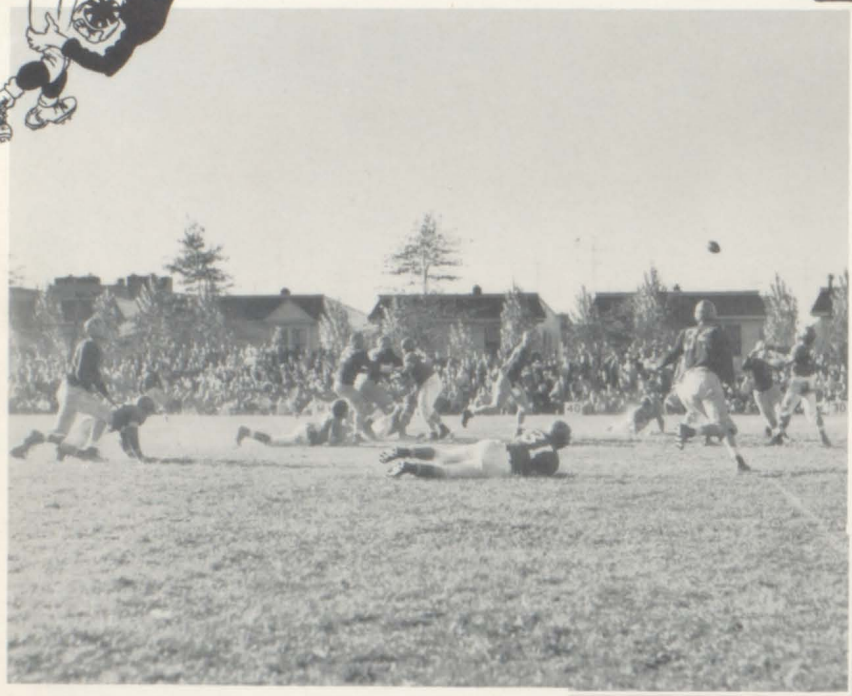

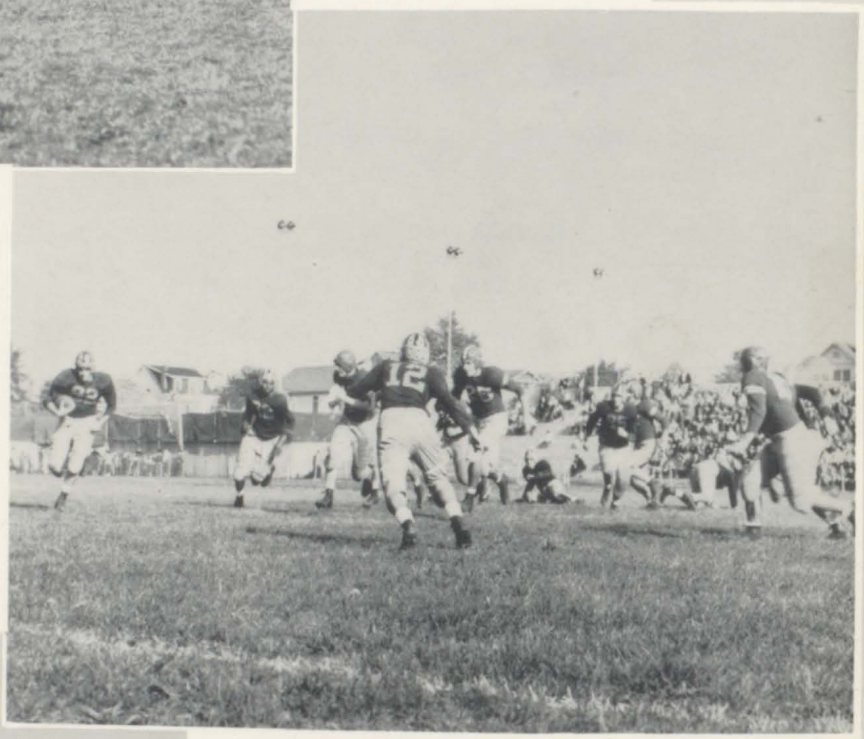

Football

Billy Sax and Andy Zupko crashing through to rush the passer as Weequahic's powerful line overruns Barringer.

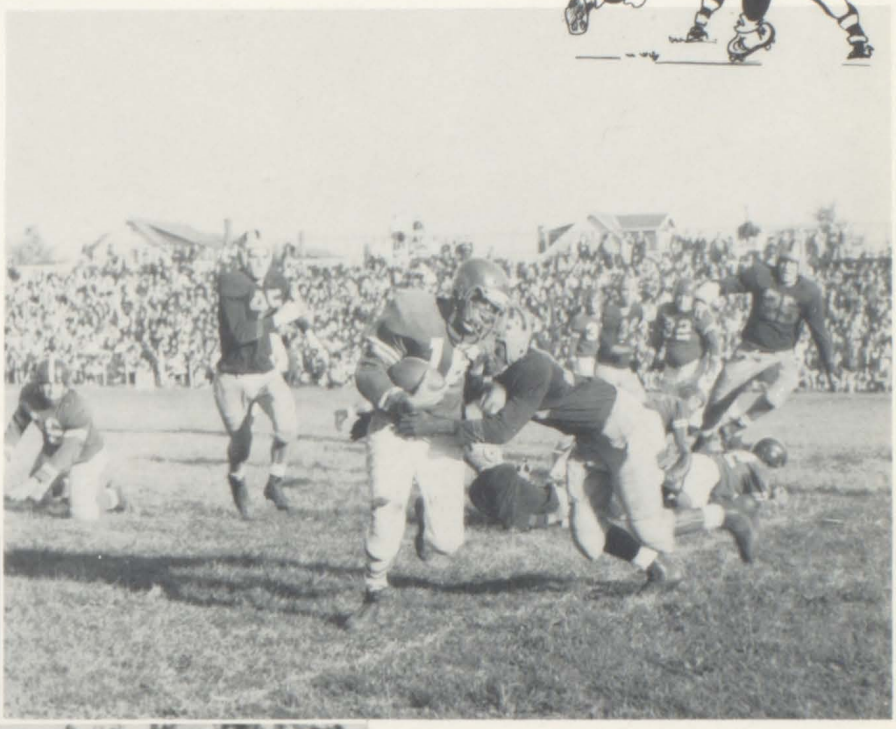

Norm Hinkes once again keeping the ball and going for a first down. Lubetkin and Williams prepare to dump would-be tacklers.

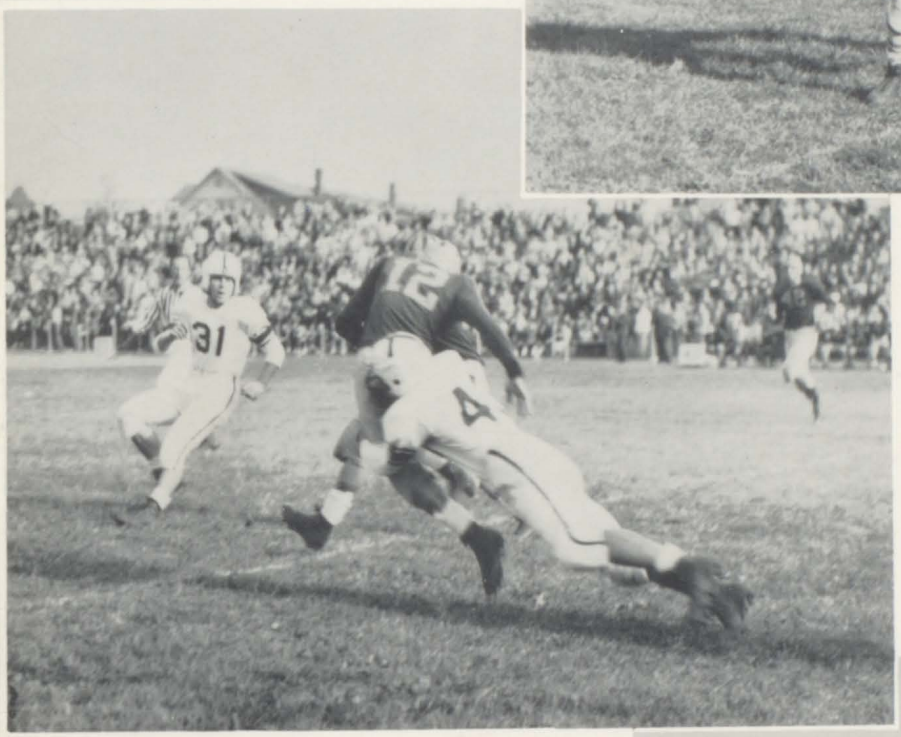

An attempt to break through the Indian line is smothered by Dvorin and Williams who quickly combine to make the tackle.

Vistas . . .

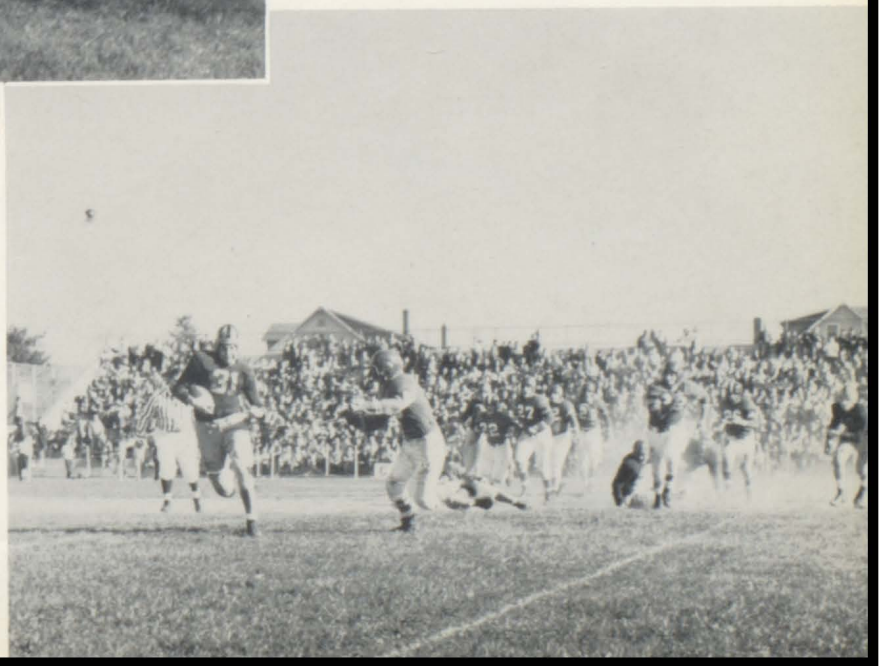

Sam Williams coming up to stop Barringer's Verducci, as Weequahic practically decides outcome of City League title.

Al Lubetkin, twisting, turning, and fighting every inch for yardage, is finally brought down after a long run.

Weequahic speedster Norman Bruck skirting end and gaining valuable yardage against Barringer.

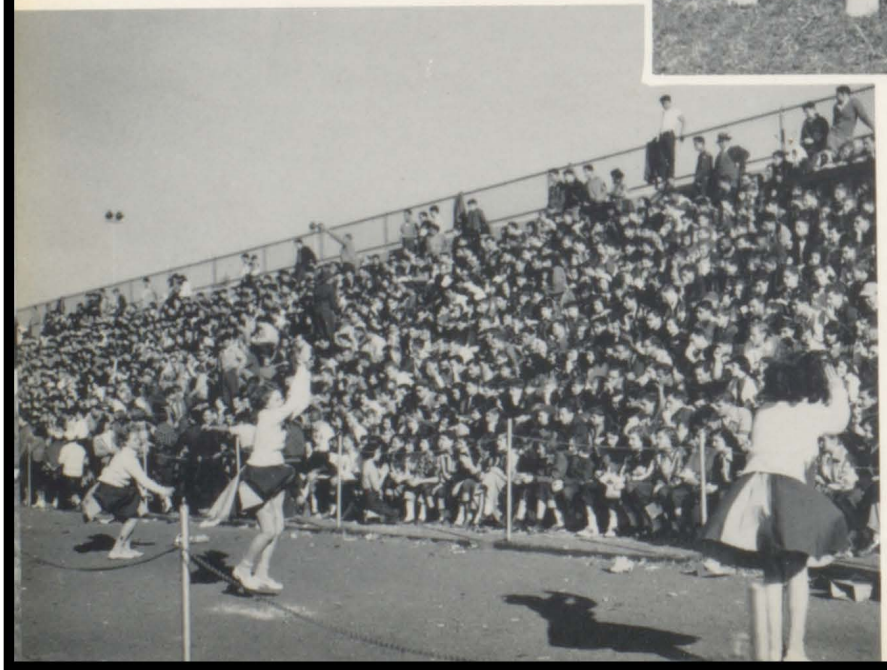

. . . and Vocals

Arnie Taub breaking through again to spill the opposition for a loss.

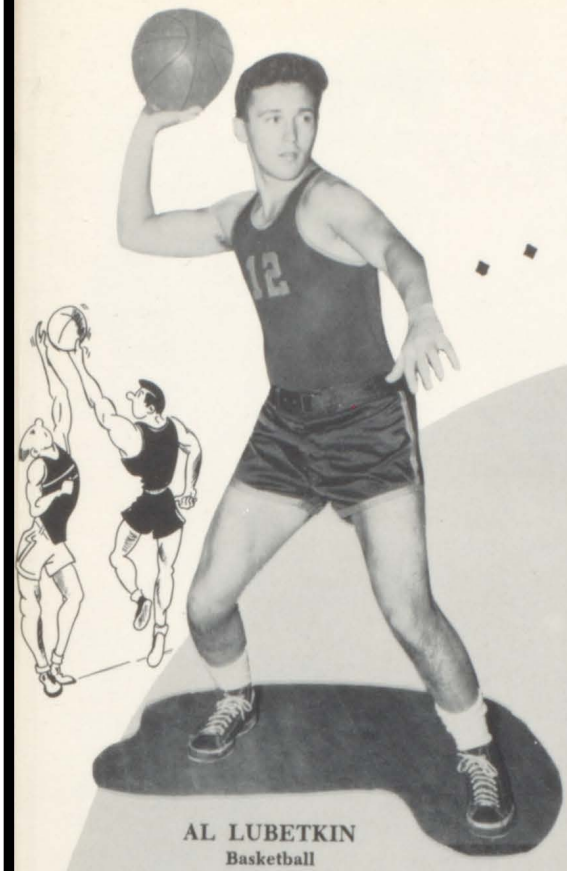

Our beautiful cheerleaders beaming with joy over the fortunes of our football team as they relax between cheers.

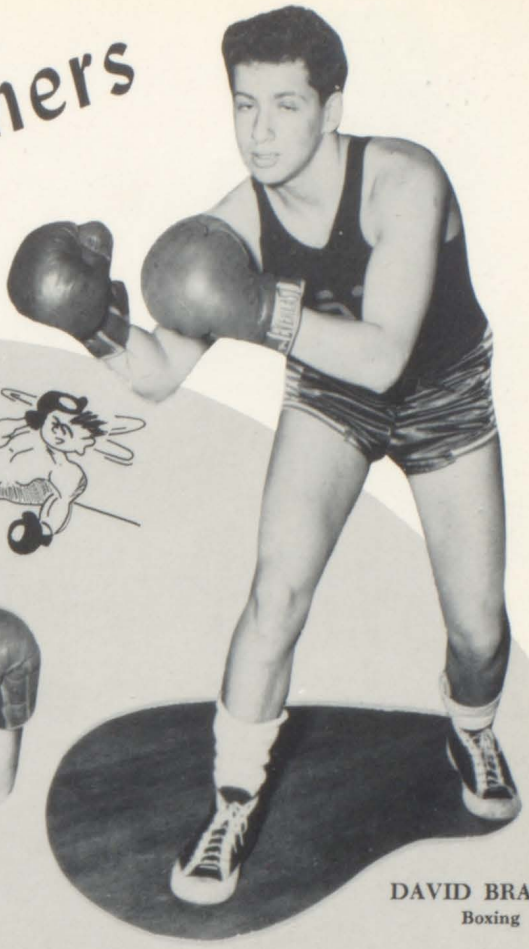

Energetic cheerleaders exhorting the Weequahic fans as our gridders enjoy their greatest year.

The end of the road

I am a lover of the wind and earth and sun
And I went back where lonesome water runs–
Where wind talks to the green leaves night and day
And children have some place to run and play.
